analyzers for physical and chemical analysis. Fluidic mobility analyzers have been under development for over a decade and are used primarily to differentiate between small particles that are equally hydrated. Now, as the current generation of fluidic mobility analyzers has proven its viability and low price, the time has come for a new generation of mobility analyzers. These instruments have different applications such as rapid on-site analysis of chemical reaction products, and characterization of the particle-size distributions of particles such as dust, seed, and food material. The analyzers can be operated in flow mode f678ea9f9e
